Sales Performance & Growth Strategy Report

Vrinda Store – Annual Report 2022

---

1. Executive Summary

The business demonstrated strong performance in the first quarter, with peak sales observed in February and March, followed by a gradual decline through the remainder of the year. Women represent the primary customer segment, contributing 64% of total sales. Operational efficiency remains high, with a 92% order fulfillment rate. Revenue generation is concentrated across a few key states, led by Maharashtra.

---

2. Sales Performance Analysis

Monthly Trends

Sales peaked in Q1, particularly in February and March, before experiencing a steady decline toward Q4. This trend suggests potential seasonality effects and reduced engagement or promotional activity in later months.

Orders vs Sales

Order volume closely aligns with revenue trends. However, a slight decline in average order value (AOV) is evident in the latter part of the year, indicating an opportunity to strengthen pricing and bundling strategies.

---

3. Customer Insights

Gender Contribution

Women account for 64% of total sales, while men contribute 36%, clearly indicating a skew toward a female customer base.

Age Group Analysis

Adults (30–49 years) represent the largest contributing segment. Female customers dominate across all age groups, while senior and younger segments present opportunities for targeted growth initiatives.

---

4. Order & Channel Performance

Order Status

The order fulfillment rate is strong at 92%. Cancellation, return, and refund rates remain low (3%, 3%, and 2%, respectively), though further optimization can enhance profitability.

Sales by Channel

Sales are primarily driven by Amazon (35%), followed by Myntra (23%) and Flipkart (22%). This indicates a high reliance on major third-party platforms.

5. Geographic Performance (Top States)

Maharashtra leads in revenue generation, followed by Karnataka and Uttar Pradesh. Telangana and Tamil Nadu also contribute significantly, highlighting strong performance in western and southern regions.

---

6. Product Category Insights

Product categories such as sets, sarees, and western dresses demonstrate strong performance. Categories like tops and kurtas show moderate contribution, while bottom wear underperforms relative to others.

---

7. Key Challenges Identified

- Declining sales trend beyond Q1
- High dependency on a limited number of sales channels
- Uneven geographic distribution of sales
- Underperformance in select product categories
- Impact of returns and cancellations on margins

---

8. Growth Strategy Recommendations

A. Revenue Growth

Implement targeted seasonal campaigns and promotional strategies to sustain demand across all quarters. Introduce product bundling and upselling techniques to improve average order value.

B. Customer Strategy

Prioritize marketing efforts toward women and the adult segment through personalized and data-driven campaigns to enhance engagement and retention.

C. Channel Expansion

Diversify the sales mix by strengthening direct-to-consumer (D2C) capabilities and expanding presence on additional platforms to reduce dependency on key marketplaces.

D. Geographic Expansion

Focus on expanding into underpenetrated regions, particularly Tier-2 and Tier-3 cities, using localized marketing strategies and region-specific assortments.

E. Product Optimization

Increase investment in high-performing categories while improving design, pricing, and positioning strategies for underperforming segments.

F. Operational Improvements

Minimize return rates by enhancing product descriptions, sizing accuracy, and quality control, while continuing to strengthen delivery efficiency.

---

9. Key KPIs to Track (Next Year)

- Monthly Sales Growth
- Average Order Value (AOV)
- Customer Acquisition Cost (CAC)
- Repeat Purchase Rate
- Return and Cancellation Rates
- Channel-wise Profitability

---

10. Final Insight

The business is well-positioned with a strong core customer base and efficient operations. Future growth will depend on sustaining demand throughout the year, diversifying sales channels, and expanding market reach while optimizing product and customer strategies.